THE DESIGNER

Michelle Brown is a Dorset based designer and lecturer at Kingston Maurward College. This year marks her fourth year of designing a garden for the RHS Chelsea Flower Show, with the theme of the garden this year focusing on celebrating Dorset horticulture through an exciting collection of plants. Subtropical species of the French Riviera are placed alongside plants found in the garden of the Jurassic Coast to create 'The Space Within' Sanctuary Garden, showing how much impact a small garden can have when using the right plants.

Located in the heart of Dorchester on a 750-acre estate, Kingston Maurward is a college, wedding venue, conference centre, working farm, tourist destination, the birthplace of Thomas Hardy and, most crucially, the only provider of land-based studies for 60 miles in any direction. With Grade II listed gardens, and modern commercial standard glasshouses, we offer a variety of courses in Horticulture including full-time further education, RHS short courses and Apprenticeships. Our Chelsea garden this year has been created with students across our horticulture and welding courses to help create this beautiful, fun and tranquil space.
